

Hi, I'm Sadeqa Ghazal. I'm a teacher-researcher from India. Currently I am pursuing PhD in English Language Teaching from Indian Institute of Technology Patna. I began teaching English as a volunteer back in 2008 in a local school. It was that experience which kindled my passion for research in ELT. I am interested in learner autonomy, teaching speaking, and critical pedagogy.

When I'm not working, I love going on long walks, travelling, and photography. When I'm not doing any of these I can be found reading.

In future, I'd like to research about how extensive reading influences foreign language learning. I am one of the moderators for this year's EVO session for classroom-based research for professional development. Hope this gives you some idea about who I am. Looking forward to learning with and from you. Thanks for listening. Have a lovely day!
